ONLINE LEARNERS STRUGGLING WITH CONNECTIVITY GET A BANDWIDTH BOOST THROUGH ADVANTIS CREDIT UNION'S $20,000 GRANT TO SELF ENHANCEMENT, INC.

PORTLAND, Ore. – January 29, 2021 – Advantis Credit Union, Oregon's sixth largest not-for-profit financial cooperative, and Self Enhancement, Inc. \(SEI\), a nonprofit dedicated to guiding underserved youth to realize their full potential, are teaming up to support online learners. Advantis' $20,000 grant to SEI represents the first of many funded projects that are part of its new Advantis Allies for Good community giving program, an ongoing commitment to allocating one-third of its annual community giving budget to programs supporting underrepresented and marginalized communities.

"As a co-op, we are committed to our founding principle of 'people helping people' and we're reshaping our community giving to drive positive change," said Jason Werts, Advantis President and CEO. "Our SEI grant to help students and families access critical education programs online is simply the beginning for us as we support addressing the inequality gap among Black, Brown, Indigenous, people of color, LGBTQ+ and other underrepresented communities."

Like millions of students across the country, many Oregon students are still struggling with distance learning due to problematic and spotty Internet connections at home. While districts evaluate in-person classroom time, distance learning will continue for most students. Advantis' $20,000 SEI grant will directly help local economically disadvantaged students who are impacted the most by online access and connectivity issues. It will provide greater bandwidth to increase internet accessibility for 66 households throughout the metro area, making it easier for students to attend and participate in online classes and other learning activities.

"The kindness and generosity of Advantis Credit Union will play a powerful role in connecting disenfranchised students and their families to education," said Tony Hopson, SEI President and CEO. "By providing access to the resources of the internet, as well as receiving technical and educational support, families will have new opportunities to grow their skills and successfully increase their access to information."

Advantis Aims to Drive Positive Change by Introducing New Giving Program

Through its new Advantis Allies for Good community giving program, the credit union is dedicating one-third of its philanthropy budget to supporting communities that have faced historical and ongoing exclusion and underrepresentation. Through financial support of nonprofits dedicated to helping these communities, education and resource initiatives, new products and services, and volunteer service, the program aims to create greater opportunity and representation within marginalized communities. Advantis' grant to SEI is the first investment that the credit union has made through its Allies for Good program.

"Advantis is committed to working as an ally by using our position to promote progress. We're listening and learning to find meaningful ways to help underrepresented communities within our organization, within the way we do business and within the credit union movement. It's not just good business, but most importantly, it's the right thing to do," said Werts.
